The Blood of Christ

Hebrews 9:11-28

Main Idea: The death of Christ is totally sufficient to deal with our sin problem, and nothing else is.

Outline: In this passage, the writer to the Hebrews presents four ways in which Christ's sacrifice is superior to the Old Testament sacrificial system. In doing so, he demonstrates not only the superiority of the cross over against all other remedies for sin, but the glorious sufficiency of the cross as well.

I. The death of Christ is a better sacrifice (Hebrews 9:11-14)

I. The death of Christ establishes a new covenant (Hebrews 9:15-22)

I. The death of Christ is brought to a better temple (Hebrews 9:23-24)

I. The death of Christ is eternally effective (Hebrews 9:25-28)
